Subject: BUREAU CHIEF EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP PROGRAM—FALL 2004

We are pleased to announce that the Los Angeles County Training Academy has developed the County's first Executive Leadership Program! The program, entitled Practical Leadership in an Era of Turbulence: A Diagnostic Approach for Decision Making, is tailored to the needs of incumbent bureau chiefs who have responsibility for managing multiple divisions and programs within and across County departments.

Like most executive leadership programs, the focus is on advanced concepts and applications that can assist leaders in confronting current situations and using data as a foundation for critical decision-making. Unique to our program is the requirement that participants actually apply the material to their operations and share findings, possible actions, and learning with others. For example, all participants will do an actual assessment of the "culture" of their operations and propose potential interventions to further align with the County's movement from Condition A to Condition B. Other dimensions of the program include choosing the "right" organization design, understanding the needs of the new workforce, and self-assessment and development of leadership behaviors.

The program will begin October 27, 2004 and will conclude February 23, 2005. It will consist of ten 4 hour classroom sessions plus scheduled team and individual coaching sessions with instructors. Participants will need to complete applied projects and will receive coaching from faculty on project development, findings interpretation, and intervention strategies. California State University faculty and County subject matter experts will teach classes.

This memorandum requests your assistance in identifying the 16 initial participants for the fall class. Each department head may nominate no more than two of their executive staff at the level of bureau chief or higher. Please use the attached form (Attachment A) to nominate potential participants.
